FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Dresdner Kleinwort Wasserstein Joins RIXML.org

NEW YORK, June 3, 2004 — RIXML.org, a consortium of buy and sell-side global market leaders committed to the development and implementation of the first open, global standard for the tagging and delivery of investment research is pleased to announce the addition of investment bank Dresdner Kleinwort Wasserstein (DrKW) to the RIXML organization with immediate effect.

“The addition of DrKW to the RIXML organization is another great example of the industry support the RIXML Standard is receiving from across the globe,” said Andrew Ling of UBS and Sell-Side Co-Chair of the RIXML.org Steering Committee. “The combination of both DrKW’s research expertise and operational innovation brings a wealth of resources to the RIXML organization that will be utilized as more and more firms implement RIXML-compliant research.”

The RIXML organization consists of Steering Committee members from buy and sell-side firms and Associate Members who are vendors that participate in the Standard and Technical Committees of the organization. As a RIXML member, DrKW will participate on the RIXML Steering Committee and will work with existing Steering Committee members to help define the strategy and support the development and implementation of the RIXML Standard.

Commenting today, Colin Jowers, global head of research operations for Capital Markets at DrKW, who is based in London said, “The RIXML Standard is a proven and genuinely innovative development for the investment research industry.” He added, “The adoption of the RIXML Standard will be beneficial to our clients and applied across DrKW’s entire Capital Markets research offering.”
